

▶ NORTHJERSEY.COM : NEWS

Obama campaign to open NJ re-election HQ

MONDAY FEBRUARY 27, 2012, 2:29 PM

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ASSOCIATED PRESS

TRENTON — President Barack Obama's re-election campaign will soon open its New Jersey headquarters.

The offices in North Brunswick will open on Wednesday. The Democratic president is seeking a second term in the November election.

In New Jersey, Obama received 57 percent of the vote in 2008, compared with 42 percent for Republican John McCain.

A recent Rutgers-Eagleton poll finds 60 percent of the state's registered voters view the president favorably, compared with 33 percent who don't.

The Republican presidential field may not be settled before the party's August convention in Tampa. Former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney, who has been endorsed by Gov. Chris Christie, and former Pennsylvania Sen. Rick Santorum are currently the top GOP contenders.

▶ Tags: 2012 Race for President | National | National Politics - National | Politics | National Politics - Politics

▶ More from NorthJersey.com - News:

- Teaneck establishes a new advisory board for Votee Park
- River Edge broadcasts meetings online
- River Edge council will not seek grant to repair building
- Parachutists leap off tall buildings in Atlantic City, elsewhere for Leap Day
- Saddle Brook school cancels classes after bomb threat
- Apple market value hits \$500B, where few have gone

Sign up for The Record home delivery

NorthJersey.com | Top

Resident assistant testifies
Clementi's ex-roommate

Parents of Fort Lee victim

GOP primary victories in pre-Super Tuesday moment

Black history stamp honored convicted for tax evasion

All systems go for Benjie
football